About HealthCorps

HealthCorps is a national non-profit organization committed to helping youth in America's underserved communities live longer, stronger and healthier lives. Grounded in the understanding that poor health habits develop early in life leading to a lifetime of social, emotional and physical challenges, HealthCorps is determined to change the culture of health and wellness in our most vulnerable communities to give future generations the best chance at long and healthy lives. Since our founding in 2003, HealthCorps has impacted 2.5 million teens, families and community members across 23 states in 340 schools.

Healthier Teens. Stronger Schools. Connected Communities.

During the COVID-19 pandemic, HealthCorps has worked with local partners to hand out over 10,000 meals per week to families in need and provided digital and print copies of physical and mental health resources to over 191,000 teens and their families to assist with boosting their immunity, staying physically healthy, and taking care of their mental health under the extreme pressure of isolation and anxiety.
